Tomato sauce is a sweet and sour sauce made by adding sugar, vinegar, and salt to tomato sauce and frying it in salad oil. Tomato sauce is reddish brown, sauce-like, delicate in texture, sweet and sour in taste and slightly spicy. Mainly used in Western food, such as tomato sauce on fried pork chops and some cold dishes, or used in tomato oxtail soup, tomato shrimp, etc. Tomato sauce is best packaged in glass bottles and placed in a ventilated and dry place. The storage environment should avoid heat and moisture.

The biggest difference between tomato sauce and tomato sauce is that tomato sauce can be eaten directly, while tomato sauce must be cooked.
